The total amount of the returns for 1821, was 208,439 taxables, 485 deaf and dumb, and 224 slaves.

In 1828, the total amount of taxables is 243,874, of deaf and dumb 464, and of slaves 76.

Adopting the usual rate of allowing five inhabitants for each taxable, the population of the state, under the census of 1821, was 1,042,195. That this is a safe average and very near the truth, is proved by the census taken by the United States in 1820, which gave the number of inhabitants in the state at 1,049,458. Continuing the same estimation, multiplying the taxables by five, our population in 1828 was 1,219,370, being an increase of 177,185. The same regular, progressive increase will make the population of Pennsylvania at the United States census in 1830, one million, two hundred and seventy thousand, nine hundred and thirty-nine. To this however must be added a population of 51,000 for the three counties from which we have no returns. This will make our whole population at the U. S. census in 1830 about 1,321,939.

The census of Pennsylvania in 1790, gave 434,373 inhabitants; in 1800, 602,548; in 1810, 810,091; in 1820, 1,049,458; and in 1830 it will be 1,270,939, or thereabouts.

JANUARY.

Preservation of Health.

Catarrhs, rheumatisms, and all inflammatory diseases, are prevalent in this month: nothing is so likely to produce them as sudden exposure to heat after a person has remained long in the cold air. Cold renders the habit of body more susceptible of impressions; the effect, therefore, of coming into a hot room from cold, is a quickened action of the blood-vessels, which frequently arises to inflammation. Running very quick, after having stood shivering in the cold for some time, is likely to produce the same bad effects.

Chilblains are prevented by whatever strengthens the general habit; and by promoting the circulation in the fingers and the feet by friction.

In the first month of the year, which, in the most natural division of the seasons, constitutes the second month of the winter quarter, heat is at its lowest in all its particulars.

Science in its most comprehensive sense only means knowledge; in its ordinary sense it means knowledge reduced to a system, that is, arranged in a regular order, so as to be conveniently taught, easily remembered, and readily applied.

All ages have seen the importance of holding in the memory those pithy sayings, which express, in a few words, some important portion of the rule of life. Such, pre-eminently, is the golden rule of our Saviour. "Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so likewise unto them." It is added, "For this is the law and the prophets;" in other words, this is the essence both of religion and morality. A series of the best of these suggestions, meeting the eye in a work of daily consultation, like an almanac, must be attended with salutary effects. It is part of the plan of the present work to afford a selection of them in the monthly divisions of the calendar, and to continue them in the successive publications of successive years.

HOW TO RULE A WIFE.

It once upon a time so happened that a man who had some dispute with his wife, gave her a moderate chastisement—upon which the fair one ran home and complained to her father. The father, pretending to be in a desperate rage at the husband, said—"What! has the scoundrel really had the impudence to beat my daughter? Well, I shall be revenged upon him, for I am determined to beat his wife;" which he did, and sent her home, and was no more troubled with the quarrels of the parties.

FEBRUARY.

Preservation of Health.

The generally damp state of the atmosphere in this month renders the habit liable to diseases of checked perspiration; it is, therefore, of great importance to keep up a uniform action of the cutaneous vessels by wearing flannel next the skin, regulating the bowels, and avoiding all sudden alternations of heat and cold.

No person should take medicine in this month without advice.

Croup is not an unfrequent consequence of the cold easterly winds, which sometimes prevail in this month. It runs its course very rapidly; and often requires the most energetic practice of the most experienced physician to arrest its tendency to a fatal issue. When medical aid cannot immediately be obtained, an emetic should be given, leeches applied to the throat, and doses of calomel exhibited at intervals till the mouth be affected. But in this disease, as all others, we caution parents from any attempt to cure it, without the best professional assistance.

The mean temperature of this month increases. This accession takes place principally while the sun is above the horizon.

Sow, towards the end of the month, marrowfat peas and the larger sorts of beans; also a little early common and red cabbage, savoy, round spinach, and small salad herbs.

Learning what we did not before know, besides the use it may be of, is in itself a pleasure, which gratifies the mind, elevates us above low pursuits, refines the passions, and gives reason power to control their violence.

Happiness is less valued when we possess it, than when we have lost it.

Adversity borrows its sharpest sting from our impatience. Do not, therefore, as most men, deem your own misfortunes always the greatest.

The best thing to be done, when evil comes upon us, is not lamentation, but action; not to sit and suffer, but to rise, and seek the remedy.

PRINCIPAL TOWNS.

Elizabeth Town, post town and borough, 6 miles south of Newark, and 15 west-south-west of New York.

NEW YORK.

New York, the first commercial city in America, at the confluence of the Hudson and East Rivers, 90 miles north-east of Philadelphia.

Albany, city, capital of New York, west bank of the Hudson, 140 miles north of New York city.

Hudson, city, on the Hudson river, 117 miles north of New York.

Schenectady, city, south-east side of the Mohawk, on the Erie canal, 15 miles north-west of Albany.

Utica, post town, stands on both sides Erie canal, and extends along the south side of the Mohawk; 96 miles west-north-west of Albany.

Troy, city, east bank of the Hudson, 6 miles above Albany. Canandaigua, post town, stands on a lake of the same name; 111 miles west of Utica.

Buffalo, post town, at the outlet of Lake Erie and the commencement of the Erie canal, 226 miles west of Albany.

Plattsburg, post town on Lake Champlain, 164 miles north of Albany.

Sackett's Harbour, at the east end of Lake Ontario, 78 miles north of Utica.

Saratoga Springs, post town, 32 miles north of Albany.

Ballston Spa, post village, 26 miles north from Albany.

Beware of self-love: the absurd preference which a man gives himself over others, is the cause of most follies and most vices in the lives of men.

"Save me from my friends, and I'll take care of my foes," says the Spanish proverb. But who shall save thee from thyself?

The evil I bring upon myself is the hardest to bear. If you would be happy, beware of letting present pleasures make you forget future pains.

AFFECTATION AND VANITY REBUKED.

Said Ann to her mother, (affecting to pout)

"That impudent man I detest!

I can't show my face, within doors or without,

But I meet the full gaze of that pest."

"Don't you think, my dear ma, that a few hours ago,

After passing him (would you believe it!)

He turn'd himself round, and he star'd at me so—

So steadily—none can conceive it!"

"Be cautious, my child—there is company here—

And you may for imprudence be blamed;

Who told you of all that impertinence, dear?"

"Why, I saw it, and was so ashamed!"

"Avoid affectation and vanity too,"

The mother replied with a smile—

"When you saw him so steadily looking at you,

Pray where did you look all the while?"

GALLANT BON-MOT.

A fashionable countess, asking a young nobleman which he thought the prettiest flowers, roses or tulips?

he replied with great gallantry, "Your ladyship's two lips before all the roses in the world."

A FRENCHMAN'S RECEIPT.

Given to an Englishman as the best mode for killing a flea.

Dat your meaning meet no sheck,
Put lassh shain about his neck;
Den of neighbours get one host,
And drag him vid main force to post;
Put one twish upon his snout,
Vid pondrose lever ope his mout,
Maugre all his kicks and flounces;
Put gunpowder two tree ounces,
Into his troat, he cry no louder,
Den put fiar poker to de poudre;
So blow him, for his mad caprices,
Into—ha! ha! ten thousand pieces.

DEFINITION OF A CONUNDRUM.

Dr. Cogan says, that the studied confusion of ideas may, in some connexions, be productive of wit,—and of "such stuff conundrums are made."

For example, if it be asked,
Why is a man in the upper part of a house committing theft, like a man of the strictest virtue?

The answer is,
Because he is above, committing a bad action.

Here is confusion of ideas, enough to satisfy any lover of conundrums, produced by inserting a single comma.

MARCH.

Preservation of Health.

The north-east winds which prevail in March dry the surface of the body, check perspiration, and cause pleurisy, croup, and other pulmonary complaints; they also chap the skin of children, and are extremely detrimental to young infants, who should not be exposed to these winds. Nothing is so injudicious as efforts to harden young children by sending them out in cold weather.

With this month commences the spring quarter; the seed-time of the husbandman, when it is so important to the interests of agriculture that the superfluous moisture should be exhaled from the earth, which would prevent the proper preparation of the soil, and destroy the germinating principle of the grain. By a wise provision of nature, therefore, the temperature of this month advances a greater number of degrees than the dew-point rises.

I take Goodness in this sense; "The seeking the weal of men." This, of all virtues, is the greatest; being the character of the Deity; and without it, man is a busy, mischievous, wretched thing; no better than a kind of vermin.—Bacon.

Take all occasions of rendering small services; remembering, that "Small matters win great commendation." The reason is, that small services are continually in use, and in view; whereas the occasion of any great virtue cometh rarely.

No man ever did a designed injury to another, without doing a greater to himself

Nothing more easy than to do mischief; nothing more difficult than to suffer without complaining.

He that walketh uprightly, saith Solomon, walketh surely.

As to be perfectly just is an attribute of the Divine Nature, so to be just to the utmost of our abilities, is the glory of a man.—Addison.

No man is wise or safe, but he that is honest.—Sir W. Raleigh.

FRENCH TRUMPETER.

In the war on the Rhine, in 1794, the French got possession of the village of Rhintal by a very curious ruse de guerre of one Joseph Werek, a trumpeter.—This village was maintained by an Austrian party of six hundred hussars. Two companies of foot were ordered to make an attack on it at ten o'clock at night. The Austrians had been apprised of the intended attack, and were drawn up ready to charge on the assailing party. On perceiving this, Werek detached himself from his own party, and contrived, by favour of the darkness, to slip into the midst of the enemy, when, taking his trumpet, he first sounded the rally in the Austrian manner, and the next moment the retreat; the Austrians, deceived by the signal, were off in an instant, at full gallop, and the French became masters of the village without striking a blow.

PICKLED COCKLES.

A parrot, the property of a lady, was one day detected by the enraged cook, for the fifteenth time, in the act of larceny, stealing pickled cockles. The maner was upon him, and she inflicted a summary punishment on the green delinquent. "What, you've been at the pickled cockles again, have you?" said she, hurling a ladle of hot soup at him. The feathers of his head were scalded off; from being excessively talkative, he became suddenly dumb; he was mute, bald, and solemn for nearly a year. At last the stubs began to peep out on his pate, and the mistress's father came from the country to see her: the old man was bald; the bird had never seen him before, and was doubtless struck with the coincidence of naked heads, for, the moment the old gentleman entered the parlour, the parrot broke his long silence by vociferating with immense emphasis and glee, "What, you've been at the pickled cockles again, have you?"

FORCE OF CUSTOM.

In a certain town, not more than fifty miles from Boston, as the clergyman was holding forth in his usual drowsy manner, one of the deacons, probably influenced by the narcotic qualities of the discourse, fell into a doze. The preacher happening to use the words "What is the price of all earthly pleasures?" the good deacon, who kept a small store, thinking the inquiry respecting some kind of merchandize, immediately answered—"seven and sixpence a dozen."

APRIL.

Preservation of Health.

It is an old custom to take physic in this month; and it is not without reason: for at this season the influence of spring is felt upon the animal frame, as it is upon the vegetable, although in a less degree; and inflammatory diseases and cutaneous eruptions show themselves, if the habit of the body be not subdued. For those who are in good health, the best spring physic is that of our grandmothers, sulphur and cream of tartar.

The mean temperature of the air rises in a greater ratio than the dew-point.

There was an old man who sold besoms at Buxton. A young fellow asked to buy one of him on credit. "Borrow of thy back, and borrow of thy belly," said the old man, "they will never ask thee again, I shall be continually dunning thee."

There is no cause of misery more fruitful than undertaking expense which we cannot afford. The greatest expense of a poor man is a wife and children. His greatest act of folly, therefore, is to marry before he has the means of supporting a family.

Our forefathers had an excellent maxim, "Do not wed, till you have sped;" and another, "When poverty comes in at the door, love flies out at the window."

He who lives by another's bounty eats the bread of sorrow.

The chiefest properties of wisdom are, to be mindful of things past, careful for things present, and provident for things to come.—Sir W. Raleigh.

The first duty of every man towards himself is, by his own labour, to fill his body with food; the next is to fill his mind with knowledge.

SAILOR'S RIDE.

Police Court.—A son of Neptune, the mate of a merchantman, was accused of capturing and running away with a milk cart belonging to the Caledonian Dairy, thereby causing a great slattering of the milk cans, and the effusion of much of their contents. The offence was committed on the London road. When the first witness was put in the box, and had his mouth most oracularly opened, preparing to speak, he, twitching him by the collar with his forefinger, caused him at once to descend, and exclaimed—"Avast there; none of your jaw; who wants you to spin out a long yarn? Can't I speak to his honour, the commodore there, myself?" Then addressing his honour, "You see, your honour," said he, "having got too much grog with some of my messmates, I see'd a great clumsy Dutch lugger of a thing bearing down our way, and towed by a horse. My eyes, said I to them, did you ever see such a thing? Do you think I could navigate her? and with that I gave a quarter-deck spring upon the top of the beast; and not liking my pilotage, I suppose, away it run before the wind, at the rate of six knots an hour. How the confounded ballast rolled all the way, and what a great noise it made! What could I do, as she would not answer her helm, and I having no bower or sheet anchor to throw out, and no port within sight? To the pilot of a thing they call a shay I sung out, that if he picked us up he would be entitled to salvage!"—(here the laughter in court, which was great before, became immoderate)—"but the lubber only rolled his tongue in his cheek and went on his course. Well, at last I tried to put her about, and sail upon an opposite tack, seeing how breakers were ahead; but she would not wear round; and as I was considering what to do, she made a heavy lurch, which pitched me overboard, and brought her on her beam ends. That's the whole naked truth, your worship's honour, and I throw myself on your reverence's mercy." The honest fellow's statement was confirmed by the different witnesses, who described the catastrophe of the lurch as having taken place at the Abby hill, between which and the point where he first set off, the London Road was literally a milky way. The judge ordered the unfortunate navigator to pay a fine of a guinea, or to be confined twenty days in the lock-up house.—Some of his messmates came forward and paid the fine.—Glasgow paper.

A DRY PUMP.

A sailor was observed, a few mornings since, working as hard at a pump-handle as if he had been on board ship, with six feet water in the hold. After fruitless attempts to obtain the element to "cool his copper," he left the pump, exclaiming—"Damn the pump—guess it was drunk last night, as well as—I both devilish dry."

MAY.

Preservation of Health.

This is a fatal month for consumptive patients, who ought to be particularly guarded against exposure to evening air. In the warm days, also, which occasionally intervene during this month, young people are apt to throw off their flannels and winter clothing, and, consequently, rheumatism is very prevalent. The management of no formed disease should be undertaken by the unprofessional; but in the country, until proper advice can be procured, much relief may be obtained from taking, at bed-time, one grain of calomel, one quarter of a grain of tartar emetic; or three grains of James's powders, and one and a half grain of opium; and following this with a brisk purgative in the morning. Avoid marshy grounds, which, in this and the next month, exhale a vapour which produces ague.

The change from winter to spring produces a state in the animal frame, which greatly augments any tendency to plethora, or fulness in the blood-vessels, and, therefore, apoplexy shows itself in this month more frequently than at other periods of the year. Every thing depends on prompt professional assistance being obtained; but when this is protracted, much benefit may be derived by dividing or cutting across the arterial branches in the temples by means of a penknife, and encouraging the flow of blood. The bowels should also be freely opened by a glyster, of castor oil, salts, and warm water.

The temperature of the air still outstrips the advance of the vapour, and the atmosphere attains very nearly its state of greatest dryness.

If a star be observed to pass behind a chimney, or to be in any particular quarter of the heavens, as due south for example, on the first day of any month, at

PRINCIPAL TOWNS.

DELAWARE.

Dover, post town, capital of the state of Delaware, situate on Jones' creek, 76 miles south-south-west of Philadelphia.

Wilmington, port of entry, and the largest town in the state, is situated between Christiana and Brandywine creeks, 1 mile from their confluence, and 28 miles south-west from Philadelphia.

Newcastle, post town, on the Delaware river, 34 miles south-west of Philadelphia.

Lewistown, or Lewes, post town, on Lewis creek, 3 miles above its entrance into Delaware bay, 112 south of Philadelphia.

Smyrna, or Duck-creek, post town, on Duck creek, 10 miles from its mouth, and 12 north-west of Dover.

CONNECTICUT.

New Haven, city and sea port, lies round the head of a harbour, 76 miles north-east of New York, and 107 south-south-east of Albany.

Hartford, city, one of the capitals of the state, on the west bank of the Connecticut, 34 miles north-north-east of New Haven.

New London, city and port of entry, on the west bank of the Thames, 53 miles east of New Haven.

Norwich, city, on the Thames, at the head of the navigation, 13 miles north of New London.

Middletown, city and port of entry, on the west bank of Connecticut river, 25 miles north-east of New Haven, 15 south of Hartford, and 35 north-west of New London.

any hour, at the end of that month it will be found to be in the same spot about two hours sooner, and so for any intermediate time in proportion; that is, in fifteen days it will pass behind the chimney one hour sooner, and so on—for stars pass any meridian about four minutes sooner every night.

The fixed stars are at an immeasurable distance from us; we will take an instance from the small stars just visible in Dr. Herschel's forty-foot telescope, and endeavour to give an idea of their distance, as follows:—The earth moves round the sun with a velocity of 100,320 feet per second, i. e., fifty times faster than a cannon ball, as the greatest velocity of a cannon ball is only 2000 feet per second. But the velocity of light is about 10,400 times greater than that of the earth; it travels, in eight minutes, a space that the earth would take near two months to travel; yet Dr. Herschel supposed that light had taken two millions of years to come to the earth from the small stars above mentioned.

There is no more fruitful cause of evil, than causeless, or intemperate anger.

Anger is a short madness.

Before you give way to anger, try to find a reason for not being angry.

A heathen philosopher, whose servant boy had committed a fault, said to him, "I should have beaten you for this, had I not been angry."

Avoid a hasty reply. It is the second word maketh the quarrel.

A soft answer turneth away wrath.

"I am angry," saith the fool, "because my neighbour hath offended me." But he who offended not is punished—thyself.

Life is short; it cannot afford time for enmities.

It is a mean and wicked as well as a foolish thing, to let any pursuit, even of knowledge, interrupt work—for independence is our duty as well as our interest.

A DRUNKARD'S CHANCE OF GETTING TO HEAVEN.

An eccentric preacher in the Methodist Chapel, Gateshead, Newcastle, in his address to his congregation, lately observed "that there was as much chance for a drunken man to inherit the kingdom of heaven, as there was for a pig to clime up an apple-tree and sing like a nightingale."

A bull, rather wild from driving, rushed into a green-shop, upsetting all that opposed his ingress. A lad in the neighbourhood hearing the noise, ran out to ascertain what was the matter. On his return, his master, who was major-domo of a conventicle, said, "Well, what was it? A reed shaken by the wind, I suppose." "O no, Sir," replied the boy, "it was no reed—it was a bull-rush."

JUNE.

Preservation of Health.

The directions for May are applicable to this month. Too free a use of raw vegetable matters is apt to bring on attacks of flatulent colic; immediate relief from the pain of which may be obtained from a tea-spoonful of paragoric in a glass of brandy. But when advice can be procured it should be resorted to, as the above anodyne would be highly improper in the event of inflammation supervening.

In this month the advance of the dew-point, and of the daily temperature are nearly equal. The energy of the sun's beams is at its height, and also its mean effort at mid-day.

Telescopes for astronomical purposes magnify 1000 times, or upward; i. e. objects appear so much nearer than when seen by the naked eye; such a telescope would exhibit the moon as seen by a person only 240 miles distant from her. The object-glass of the telescope forms an image of the moon, and then the eye-glass magnifies that image, as a common microscope magnifies the image of a fly, or any other object submitted to its powers. Galileo was the first astronomer who used the telescope: his telescope magnified about thirty times; but being the first reaper in the rich field of astronomical science, his toil was amply rewarded, and he made with this small instrument several most important discoveries; in about a year, amongst other things, he discovered the satellites of Jupiter, and the nebula in Orion, and observed, that the planet Venus exhibited appearances similar to our moon.

Remember that it makes a fault worse, to endeavour to conceal it.

Roguary with a pretext is double roguary

The best practical rule of morality is, never to do any thing which you would be unwilling that all the world should know.

Concealment is a species of lie; and always betokens cowardice at the heart.

There is no surer mark of an incorrigible wrong-doer, than to have an excuse in his mouth for every fault.

There cannot be a greater treachery than first to raise a confidence, and then to deceive it.—Spectator.

Sincerity is to speak as we think; to do as we pretend and profess; to perform and make good what we promise; and really to be what we would seem and appear to be.

Some of the leading principles in domestic economy may be comprised in a few words.

For instance:—

Ready money procures the best market.

Keep a minute account of every outlay, however trifling.

HOW TO RULE A HUSBAND.

Marry a man who has few relatives, chiefly women—they being least powerful. Try to reside near your own parents, so as to run home on every trifling occasion to complain, and add every thing that may provoke his resentment—the earlier after marriage the better, so as to bring him down in his wedding shoes, as the saying is. If he is a man of good manners, he will, of course, take it patiently, and contradict you no more. Thus, having him under management, compel him to give you all the money he gets, and watch him lest he keeps back a trifle, as wives can take best care of money. Be very cautious, if on such occasions he gives a rough answer, to go immediately to your father, and cry ready to break your heart, declaring you have been cruelly beaten; then show on your arms, previously rubbed with charcoal, as though he pinched you. If you have any female neighbours, of animated character, give them a present now and then to swear they heard your cries, and saw him attempt to kill you with a shovel. Should your friends, (in dread of supporting you,) advise you to make up, be at peace, &c., go immediately into a fit, and hold your breath until you are black in the face—if they have any humanity in them they will fly to the wretch at home, pull his hair, tread on his toes, kick him, and if he turns upon them, as such a monster might offer to do, run out, every mother's son of you, crying murder. The noise brings evidence, so that only lifting his hand is enough—all go the justice, though a hundred, and bind him over to the peace.—This nabs him, and thus, should he be wise enough to know his duty, and live with you again, will bring him completely into your power, and you may with safety correct him, having now completely tamed your husband.

JULY.

Preservation of Health.

In those who are corpulent, the perspiration induced in hot weather is apt to cause a miliary eruption on the skin, similar to the prickly heat of hot climates. It is easily moderated by wearing calico next the skin to absorb the acrid perspiration; and by employing a cool regimen and free ventilation, to render the exudation of the skin milder. It is a mistaken notion to suppose that wine and spirits are useful in this state of habit; even a small proportion of these stimulants often produces a deleterious effect. One of the best preventives is a frequent change of linen. Take off flannel which has been worn next the skin, in this month; and use, once or twice, the tepid bath.

In hot weather, those predisposed to spittings of blood, are in great danger of an attack of that disease. When medical advice is not at hand, it is of importance to know, that the bleeding may be moderated by placing the patient in a sitting position, giving him small doses of rice or iced water, and keeping the trunk of the body as cool as possible, while, at the same time, the extremities are kept warm.

In this month the increase of vapour is rather greater than that of temperature, and both approach their maximum.

Each little particle of light, which enters our eyes from the nearest fixed stars, has performed a journey of above four hundred days; and yet this light moves 520,000 times faster than a cannon ball moves, when it rushes from the mouth of the cannon. How distant, therefore, must be the nearest star! Clusters of stars very close to each other, are called Nebulae, or Clouds, from their appearing to the naked eye like white clouds. All these nebulae, however, are not composed of small stars; many consist of self-luminous matter, which the fertile imagination of astronomers has supposed to be the creative matter, from which suns and worlds are formed. The most remarkable of these nebulae is that in the sword-handle of the constellation Orion: there is some resemblance between its form, and that of the head, snout, and jaws, of some monstrous animal.

Want of punctuality is lying.

Lying is the vice of a slave.—Plutarch.

The man whose word can always be depended upon, is sure to be always honoured.

There is nothing more worthy of a man than truth; nothing makes him feel himself so despicable as a lie.

Men often act lies without speaking them. All false appearances are lies. All shuffling and prevarication are lies.

When a bad man puts on the guise of a good man, he is then the most bad.

A habit of lying in small things leads on to a habit of lying in great; and then a man is wholly detestable.

The hypocrite is a man whose whole life is a lie.

Be not tempted to purchase any unnecessary article by its apparent cheapness.

If your means will allow it, do not buy in very small quantities articles in constant family use, and which are not perishable.

Whoever can take delight in reading a ghost story, or a newspaper, would learn some science of real use, with little more trouble and with much more pleasure.

INDIAN SAGACITY.

Travelling a few years since through that portion of our country held and occupied by the Chickasaw tribe of Indians, I was constrained to halt a few days, to recruit myself and horse at a half breed's hut. When about to depart, I sought my host, but he was out hunting. I therefore called upon an old Indian (an inmate of the hut) for my bill. Five dollars was the demand. I presented a bank-note for the amount. He refused it; but on my turning my pockets, and exhibiting my portmanteau, to show that I was absolutely destitute of coin—he, with much apparent reluctance, agreed to take the note. He then went out, leaving it in my hands, and shortly returned, to my astonishment, bearing a pair of steel-yards. He took the note, compared the figures thereon with the 5 on the steel-yards, laughed, shook my hand with great satisfaction, and cried che-ke-nah,—(good—'tis right.)

AUGUST.

Preservation of Health.

One of the best modes of preserving health, and invigorating the constitution against the evils of the approaching winter, is the daily use of the cold bath. In many habits, however, the plunging bath is hurtful, by the absence of that reaction which causes the glow on the skin of those who are benefited by bathing. In these cases, the shower bath is often useful, but, when no reaction even follows its use, the individual should sponge the trunk of the body with cold salt water, or vinegar and water, before rising in the morning, whilst the limbs are kept warm in bed.

The particulars of this month do not vary much from the preceding; the warm nights continue and the heat of the day is undiminished. Evaporation is the same as in the last month.

In warm weather meat should be carefully examined; powdered charcoal will preserve it from taint; Pyroligneous acid will effect this better — Meat and vegetables that are frozen should be soaked in cold water several hours before dressing.

Where stars are discovered in the midst of the self-luminous matter, called a nebula, the stars seem to have driven off the nebula, and appear situated on a dark ground, surrounded by the luminous matter. Thus there is a nebula in Sagittarius broken into three parts; this fracture forms three dark roads through the luminous matter, and where these roads meet, and in the centre of the nebula, is situated a beautiful double star. Again, Mr. Poud, on looking through Mr. Ramage's telescope, lately erected at the Royal Observatory, at the nebula in Orion before mentioned, discovered a curious circumstance—in the midst of this nebula are three stars nearly in a straight line, and the light of the nebula appears to have receded from them in a semicircular form.

Since custom is the powerful magistrate of man's life, let men, by all means, endeavour to obtain good customs.

Certainly custom is most perfect, when it beginneth in young years. This we call education; which is nothing but an early custom.

To inure young persons to bear patiently small injuries, is a capital branch of education: nothing tends more effectually to secure them against great injuries.

A man who gives his children habits of truth, industry, and frugality, provides for them better than by giving them a stock of money.

Nurture passeth nature.

Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it.

There are no gains without pains.

Then help hands, I have no lands.

What we call time enough always proves little enough.

One "come boys" is better than two "go boys."

It is by the mouth that the cow gives milk.

A little neglect may breed a great mischief: for want of a nail the shoe was lost; for want of a shoe the horse was lost; for want of a horse the man was lost.

Provisions are cheap or dear according to seasons. A sensible man will allow nothing for luxuries unless his income be beyond the reach of accident.

It was once asked, How are we to know a wise man from a fool? It was answered, Turn them both out naked among strangers, and you will see.

A wise man is strong, saith Solomon; yea, a man of wisdom increaseth strength.

Test Act.—A Hopeful Legislator.—An anecdote on this subject is travelling the conversaciones. A young noble legislator, Lord C., is reported to have called upon one of the ministers, and inquired "what the Test and Corporation business was—whether it was connected with corn or the colonies?" The minister is reported to have replied, "Never mind—go down and vote against it."

An Expensive Job.—A gentleman passing a country church while under repair, observed to one of the workmen that he thought it would be an expensive job. 'Why, yes,' replied he, 'but in my opinion we shall accomplish what our minister has endeavoured to do for the last thirty years in vain.' 'What is that?' said the gentleman. 'Why bring all the parish to repentance.'

SEPTEMBER.

Preservation of Health.

The change of the season, and the free use of plums and other stone-fruit in this month, render the cholera and diarrhœas frequent. When these complaints occur, the best medical advice should be speedily procured; but it may be useful to know that much of the mischief is caused by the skins of the fruit alluded to, which, being insoluble in the stomach, and astringent, become acrid and stimulant, producing spasm and the colic pains which accompany these diarrhœas. No stone-fruit, which is not fully ripened, and the flesh of which is not a soft, juicy pulp, is wholesome.

In the first month of autumn the reduction of temperature begins to be felt; but still less in the day than during the night; the mean temperature declines.

If we could give to a cannon ball a velocity of 25981,9824 feet per second, it would revolve round the earth like the moon, in one hour, twenty-four minutes, and twenty-seven and a half seconds. The ingenuity of man (unhappily exercised for the destruction of his fellow-creatures) has hitherto succeeded in producing no greater velocity than 2000 feet per second. The planet Jupiter is 1251 times greater than our earth:—what must be the power of that Being who projected so vast a body with a velocity of 42,240 feet per second? The circumference of our earth is about 24,869 miles.

The hand of the diligent shall bear rule, but the slothful shall be under tribute.—Proverbs.

The hand of the diligent maketh rich.

Sloth, like rust, consumes faster than labour wears. God helps them that help themselves.

Jocosity.--A member of parliament when that body was honoured with the membership of Mr. Burke, was generally so dull in his speeches that his rising often was a signal to desert the benches. Having at one time thinned a full house down to a few dozen, he unexpectedly called for the reading of the Riot Act, to support something in his argument. Mr. Burke who had been anxiously waiting to speak on the subject, could contain himself no longer, but jumping up cried out! with an irresistibly comic air, 'The Riot Act! my dear friend, the Riot Act! to what purpose? don't you see that the mob is completely dispersed?'

A few days since five couple were married at Stoke Church; among these a sailor attended with his blushing belle. Jack's face presenting to the clergyman's view no small number of scratches, intersecting each other in all directions, he looked at him rather earnestly, which Jack perceiving, exclaimed, "I know, your honour, what you are glimping at; 'twas Madam there did it last night," pointing to his intended bride, "but I served her out for it--only look at her eyes," and Jack was right, for on inspecting the damsel, the orbs of vision were found surrounded by nearly all the colours of the rainbow; they went to the altar in perfect good humour to complete the ceremony.

Painting a Thief.--When Gainsborough resided at Sudbury, both himself and his neighbours were ignorant of his genius till seeing a country fellow looking wishfully over his garden wall at some pears, he caught up a bit of board and painted him so inimitably well, that the board being placed upon the top of the wall, several of the neighbours immediately recognized the figure of him, who had paid so many unwelcome visits to their gardens--and being by the means of this likeness, charged by one of them with the robbery of his orchard, he acknowledged it, and agreed to go into the army, to avoid a worse fate.

A young gentleman having occasion to ask a lady for the snuffers across the table, addressed her in the following truly emphatic and enamoured strain: "Most beautiful, accomplished, and charming lady, will your ladyship, by an unmerited and undeserved condescension of your infinite goodness, please to extend your most obsequious, devoted and very humble servant, that pair of ignipotent digests, that I may excarpate the excrescences of this nocturnal cylindric luminary, in order that the refulgent brightness of its resplendent brilliancy may dazzle the vision of our ocular optics more potently."

OCTOBER.

Preservation of Health.

Those who are liable to attacks of leprosy, moist tetter, and several other skin diseases, generally experience a return of them in this month. They are best guarded against by the use of the tepid bath, friction on the skin, and the regulation of the bowels.

The mean temperature of this month falls, and the dew-point declines almost in the same proportion. Evaporation decreases.

Many stars, which appear single, are found to consist of two, three, or four stars; and these stars are frequently of different colours: sometimes a white is combined with a blue or purple star; and yellow, orange, or red large stars, are found with blue or purple small ones: sometimes the small star has a very rapid motion around the large one; the star Xi of the Great Bear is an example of this, the little star moving above six degrees every year.

He who spends all he gets, is in the road to beggary.
Spare with both hands; spend only with one.

Now I have a sheep, and a cow; every body bids me good-morrow.

The first rule of frugality is, not to give yourself more mouths than you have food to fill.

If you save not when you are single, how can you do so when you are wed?

It is twice as good to save early as to save late.
It is a good rule, eat within your stomach; act within your commission; live within your means.

Copper vessels should be kept properly tinned. Be particular not to put by any vegetable liquid in sauce-pans of this description.

Greek Heroism.—Miaulis, the Greek Admiral, who recently defeated the Egyptian fleet, seeing that the government wanted money, collected all the remains of his own fortune, and distributed it amongst the captains and sailors: 'If I die,' said he, 'it will be useless to me; and if we are victorious, my country's safety will be to me an ample reward.'

Wil of Exaggeration.—A gentleman who had visited the Columbus, was describing in very pompous terms, the extent of her decks, the size of the chicken-coops, and stalls for cattle, &c. &c. when C — (rather tired of the subject) observed, "O! yes, I hear they had a pack of hounds and a few hares for the amusement of hunting occasionally as they crossed the Atlantic."

A High Compliment.—Sir B — R — an Irish knight, was married to the daughter of Lord C —, a connexion of which the knight was somewhat proud. Boasting of this union once to a friend, he observed that his lordship had paid him the highest compliment in his power. He had seven daughters, said he, and he gave me the oudest; and he tould me too that if he had an oulder I should have her.

When Lord Ellenborough was attorney general, he was listening with some impatience to the judgment of a learned judge, afterwards his colleague, who said, "In — v. — I ruled that," &c. — "You rule!" said the attorney general, in a tone loud enough to be heard, however, by many of his brethren of the bar: "You rule! you were never fit to rule any thing but a copy book."

Penance for fighting.—The following canon was issued by the bishop of each diocese in the reign of William the Conqueror:—Let those who fight only for hope of a reward, know that they ought to do penance as for murder!

A debtor being confined in Jail, sent to his creditor to let him know that he had a proposal to make, which he believed would be for their mutual benefit. The creditor called on him to hear it. "I have been thinking, (said the former,) that it is a very bad thing for me to lie here, and put you to the expense of one dollar and twenty-five cents per week. My being so chargeable to you has given me great uneasiness, for God knows what it may cost you in the end. Therefore, what I would propose is this: You shall let me out of Jail, and allow me one dollar per week, and let the twenty five cents go towards discharging the debt."

NOVEMBER.

Preservation of Health.

This is the period of the year in which coughs, consumptions, rheumatisms, and a numerous train of complaints fix themselves in the habit. Much of the evil proceeds from exposure to sudden alternations of heat and cold, which should, therefore, be carefully avoided. The body must be now encased in flannel; and those susceptible to diseases of the lungs should always put a portion of gum, or some simple lozenge, into the mouth, when they expose themselves to the night air, and in foggy weather. Ulcers which have long been open, must not be healed up in this month, unless their place be supplied by an artificial issue, or a seton.

In this month the atmosphere is nearly saturated with moisture.

Never throw away the liquor in which meat has been boiled: wholesome soup may be made from it, with the addition of bones and vegetables.—New bread is expensive and indigestible: do not cut a loaf till it is at least a day old.

Be not ignorant of any thing, in a great matter or a small.—Ecclesiasticus.

The glory and increase of wisdom consists in exercising it.—Sir P. Sidney.

The head helps the hand.

Get good sense, you will not want good luck.

The gods give all things to wisdom; was an ancient heathen proverb.

There is no condition that doth not sit well upon a wise man.

The labouring man, in the present age, if he does but read, has more helps to wisdom than Solomon had.

Irish Method of Finding a Verdict.—To bring about the unanimity in a Jury at Wexford last assizes, a stratagem was restored to. The evidence against Gribble (the revenue officer charged with the robbery of tobacco from the King's stores) appeared to be conclusive. Notwithstanding the able defence of him by his counsel, Mr Smith, it was the general impression in Court that he could not escape conviction. Only one of the Jury, however, was under that impression. "Well gentlemen," said he to the others, "since you will not agree to adopt my view of the case, a thought strikes me by which we can get over the difficulty. 'I'll write guilty,' and then I'll retire, and you can act as you think proper." The expedient was approved of—the fearful word "guilty" was written down. Our readers, no doubt, picture in imagination, the sword of justice, like that of Damocles, suspended over the head of poor Gribble; but as the proverb says, "all is not lost that is in danger," the conscientious jurymen having stepped aside, his worthy companions added "Not."

To preserve the Teeth.—Let finely pulverised charcoal be heated to redness in an iron kettle, and, while hot poured into a bowl of clean water. Put this immediately in a bottle and cork it tight.—When used, shake it up, take a small quantity into the mouth, and rub the teeth. Every thing that renders the breath unpleasant, and injurious and destructive to the teeth, will be removed. Or if a dry powder is preferred, the charcoal may be put into the phial and secured from the air by a tight cork.

This is the cheapest, the most convenient and effectual preservative for the teeth. There is nothing about it unpleasant or injurious: while many of the tooth powders that are peddled about the country as a sure elixir, are unpleasant to the taste, detrimental to the health, injurious to the gums, and destructive to the teeth; and others of these wonderful preparations are nothing but pulverised charcoal, which any one may prepare for himself in fifteen minutes, and thus save his twenty-five cents.

A fourth-of-July orator whose address appeared in a Western paper, commences thus; "Fellow Citizens and Ladies." This reminds us of the last address of George III. to his Parliament, when his insanity was discovered by the commencement of his speech thus:—"My Lords and Peacocks!"

A couple having attended one morning this week at Worksop church, for the purpose of being joined together in the holy bands of matrimony, on the usual question being put by the Rev. Divine to the bridegroom, "Will you have this woman?" &c. he answered, at the same time most vigorously scratching his head with both his hands, "Whcy yees, I should like, Sur."—Nottingham Mercury.

DECEMBER.

Preservation of Health.

The convivial meetings, and the heated rooms consequent upon them, are the source of many diseases in this month. Warm clothing, temperance, and regular hours, are, therefore, essential.

The month of December closes the year with nearly the same character as those of the preceding month.

Coals are an article of great expense; coke may be advantageously used with them, or balls compounded of clay, small coal, and charcoal. Coals should be kept moderately wetted and cinders carefully sifted.

Order in affairs is one of the things on which a man's success in life most especially depends. The rules of order are mostly summed up in these two precepts:—

1. A place for every thing; and every thing in its place.

2. A time for every thing; and every thing in its time. De Witt, the famous minister of state in Holland, being asked, how he managed to transact such a load of business? replied, By doing one thing at a time.

To choose time, is to save time; and an unseasonable motion is but beating the air.

He that does his turn in time sits half idle. It is useless shutting the stable door when the steed is stolen.

“Had I wist,” quoth the fool. Take care of the minutes; the days will take care of themselves.

A wise man counts his minutes. He lets no time slip; for time is life, which he makes long by the good husbandry of a right use and application of it.—J. Estrange.

MARRIED LIFE.

The Chillicothean, published in Ohio, contains a poetical notice against trusting a certain married lady therein mentioned, which concludes as follows: "Farewell—a long farewell to married life, Cursed be the hour that gave me such a wife, Who fairest days could cloud with her sweet will, And raise a tempest—tho' the winds were still. I'll live alone—henceforth—(a quiet tiller.) And have no more of her—so help me God."

JOHN MILLER.

A man at an ordinary had eaten so enormously, that the company were astonished and disgusted at his gluttony. The gentleman at the head of the table ironically pressed him to take another plateful, observing that he had actually eaten nothing. The gourmand declined taking any more, observing that his stomach was quite gone. Upon which an Irishman opposite exclaimed, "Is it your stomach that's gone, my honey! sure you mean the bottom of it."

A WET PAIR.—On a very rainy day, a man entering his house was accosted by his wife in the following manner: 'Now my dear while you are wet, go and fetch me a bucket of water.' He obeyed, brought the water and threw it all over her, saying at the same time, 'Now my dear, while you are wet go and fetch another.'

D

A gentleman lately took a bet that he would cause all the bells of a well frequented tavern in town to ring at the same period, without touching one of them, or even leaving the room.—This he accomplished by turning the stop-cock of the main gas pipe, and involving the whole in instant darkness. In a short period the clangour of bells rung from every room and box in the house, which gained him his bet amidst the general laughter and applause even of the losers.—Glasgow Chronicle.

THE DINNER.—A PARODY.

I knew by the smoke that so gracefully curl'd,
Throughout the long hall, that a dinner was near,
And I said "If there's food to be found in the world,
A mouth that was hungry might hope for it here.
'Twas noon, and on benches that stood there around
In silence repos'd the voluptuous rake;
Every tongue was at rest, and I heard not a sound,
But the Kitchen maid pounding the bony beef steak.
And "here, by this long dinner table," I hallooed,
"With salmon, potato, hot pudding, and meat.
Which would break, when I bit 'em, and sink when I swallow'd,
How long could I live, and how much could I eat!
By yon bottle of sherry, whose red bosom glows
In the gush of the sunbeam, how sweet to recline;
And to know that the waters I guzzled were those Which inspir'd Tom Moore with a spirit divine.

THERE is, perhaps, no subject of more universal interest in the whole range of natural knowledge than that of the unceasing fluctuations which take place in the atmosphere in which we are immersed. The interest, the health, the enjoyment, or the convenience of every one is, more or less, constantly affected by the weather, and the general anxiety hence arising gives rise to perpetual endeavours to prognosticate its changes. In this, as in more important matters, the curiosity and credulity of the ignorant have been made the sport of the artful and designing; and prophecies upon this subject, if less injurious than upon others, have certainly not been less absurd.

But although we neither pretend to prophesy ourselves, nor to teach the art of prophesying to others, we are of opinion that useful anticipations may be formed upon the safe principle, that like causes always produce like effects. It is thus that we anticipate cold in winter and heat in summer; and, for reasons not quite as obvious, but which will be hereafter explained, we expect the driest winds in March, and a period of heavy rain in July. We abjure the legend of St. Swithin, but do not doubt the experience upon which it was engrafted. We have great respect, also, for the judgment of the gardener and the mariner upon atmospheric changes; for they form their opinions upon constant observations of phenomena which escape the attention of those who are less exposed to their influence. Observations such as these science will aid and extend, not change; and, we doubt not, that if the same pains were taken to spread the knowledge of useful inventions in this department of science, as have hitherto been devoted to perpetuate error, the spirit of inquiry, assisted by such artificial means, would largely extend our knowledge of Meteorology* and its useful applications. Of the advantages of such an union, we have a remarkable instance in our own days, in the adoption of the Marine Barometer. Even common sailors are now acquainted with the use of this instrument, and to its timely warnings may a valuable ship be acknowledged to owe its preservation.

Such useful knowledge in this department of nature, it will be our aim to substitute for the absurdities with which the popular almanacs have hitherto been disfigured. The unfolding of our plan we must leave to time; for few people can be aware of the extent of the information which may be extracted from the works of different individuals who have made this subject their study: information, however, which has never been collected into a popular form; but which it shall be our endeavour to divest of such unnecessary obscurity as the less learned are subject to find in the observations of scientific men.

The first step which we shall take for this purpose is to explain, as concisely as possible, the meaning of the terms in which the observations in the following pages are recorded; referring, for a more full account of the practical use which may be made of them, to our subsequent ALMANACS and the Treatises on meteorology.

The Barometer, by which the first is measured, is an instrument now too well known to require description in the limited space to which this explanation must necessarily be confined. We shall, however, have something to say, hereafter, upon this instrument, and of some misconceptions of its use. The observations are recorded in inches and thousandth parts of an inch of mercury. The Thermometer, by which the variations of heat are ascertained, is also generally known. The temperature registered is that of the air in the shade: but, besides this, the power of the sun's rays is recorded, and the force of terrestrial radiation; which we cannot here further explain than by describing it as the cold produced at night upon a plot of short grass exposed to the full aspect of the sky; and which, in clear and calm weather, is always considerably below the temperature of sheltered situations. The Hygrometer, by which the state of the atmosphere is ascertained with regard to moisture, is not as generally known as the two preceding instruments, and will, hereafter, require a full description: it must be sufficient, at present, to remark, that it is a contrivance by which the degree of temperature is readily noted at which moisture begins to be deposited upon a cold body: as we see in summer in the familiar instances of a bottle of wine brought from a cellar, or a decanter of water fresh filled from a well. This degree is called the dew-point; and from it the degree of dryness may be accurately calculated, and the force or elasticity of the atmosphere of steam, which is always mingled with the air.

*From two Greek words, signifying the Doctrine of Celestial i. e. Atmospherical things.
